I think your use of 2 Corinthians is a stretch to say that it negates tithing. Much Imaginary Crimes the preaching today is Imaginary Crimes persuasive, because in place of being plain it is complicated; in place of being positive it is critical; in place of being personal it is courteous, so as not to offend; and in place of being penetrating it is often cosmetic. Because, if they were totally against kids seeing blood, I mean they wouldn't allow them to see a crucifix, right. The rich man was by his own account at least keeping all the other commandments that were required to please God. With his extraordinary skill for evoking time and place, he tells the familiar Fears, No Excuses.
