The subimage contained in each square is approximated in the least square sense using polynomial functions. Forewing has the base densely and broadly irrorated with black scales which gradually merge along the costa into the black apical area that occupies about one-third of the wing, the inner margin of this area irregular, passing in a curve from costa to vein 4, thence vertically to vein 3 outwards in interspace 2 and irregularly to the dorsum; a curved preapical series of four or five white spots superposed on the black area.

Bellaire and Billy

As there is little chance that new primary data will show up about past conflicts, the chances of new reliable estimates from other sources are small. Accordingly one may say: 1 The subject has an interest in an object which is denoted to the faculties of perception as belonging essentially to the satisfaction of a want; as, for example, a hungry person has an interest in a loaf of bread; a person suffering with cold has an interest in a cloak; and the employer has an interest in the performance of the labor of his employees; 2 the subject has an interest only in the undisturbed exercise of his will, and consequently the object of the interest would be always a relation to persons, and having an importance in that the act of will directed to the object of the necessity, as the eating of bread, the wearing of the cloak, or the employment of labor, is not interfered .
