A campus culture devoted to policing speech and punishing speakers is likely to engender patterns of thought that are surprisingly similar to those long identified by cognitive behavioral therapists as causes of depression and anxiety. At the University of Washington, Marshall Brown has been my most constant and marvelously demanding reader. One night, Huestis testified, awful screams broke the silence, and Huestis followed Eva to a room where two nuns were hovering over another nun in the bed. As the Danish State in let 16 such families move out of the asylum centers, the Danish Red Cross was determined to document the effect of this change of environment and agency.
